

TENER SOLD NAME

For Five Thousand Dollar Salary and $50,000 of Stock.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE

For Governor Associate of Crooks and Bankrupts in $2,000,000 Swindling Scheme.

Last Tuesday the Philadelphia North American stated it had found in the record of John K. Tener things absolutely revolting and gave Senator Penrose 48 hours to examine their evidence and remove Tener's name from the ticket. He failed to appear to examine the evidence and yesterday the North American printed the following:

John K. Tener is the business friend and associate of swindlers, convicted and unconvicted.

He sold his name as president of a fraudulent corporation formed and conducted by these men, the consideration they voted him, on the day he was elected, being a salary of $5,000 a year and $50,000 in stock.

By the use of his name as president and director of the swindling concern they have sold its worthless stock to the public.

The Tener corporation is capitalized at $2,000,000, the issue being based upon the worthless remnants of four other corporations, organized and wrecked by the same swindlers, which have fleeced numerous investors.

Its literature, bearing prominently the name of John K. Tener as president and director, is a mass of false and misleading representations.

The "assets" of the corporation to which he sold the use of his name consists of the "assets" of bankrupt fake corporations, which were falsely valued at $2,000,000 and made the basis of a fraudulent issue of $2,000,000 "full paid and non-assessable stock."

It was of the company issuing this fraudulent stock that Tener became president and director, and it is this fraudulent stock which has been sold by the use of his name, the selling being done not only by his fraudulent corporation, but by two fake banking concerns formed by his associates in that company.

The fraudulent corporation was formed and the crooked stock issued on December 13, 1909.

On motion of Tener's close friend and business associate—who is a professional promoter of swindlers—Mr. Tener was elected a director and president on January 4, 1910. His friend, the professional promoter of swindlers, thereupon became vice president and general manager.

On motion of this same friend, the salary of President Tener was fixed at $5,000 a year, and there was voted to him an additional bonus of $50,000 of stock in a paper railroad which was among the assets of the concern. At a later meeting, President Tener being present, the secretary was instructed to attend to all matters of general business of the swindling corporation, keeping in touch with Mr. Tener.

Mr. Tener remained president until May 2, 1910, when he resigned. This was about the time his selection by Senator Penrose as a candidate for Governor was decided upon. He did not resign, however, from the board of directors.

At a stockholders' meeting on May 5, Tener's 5,330 shares of stock in the swindling corporation were voted by proxy. One action was the approval of two contracts by which "banking" firms formed by some of Tener's associates and fellow-directors in the concern—swindlers and bankrupts—acquired exclusive right to sell the fraudulent stock to the public.

Although Tener's friends say that he resigned as a director "a long time ago," there is no record of such action on the minutes up to September 22, 1910, and letters and circulars used by the swindlers continued to bear his name as president after he resigned that office.

The North American presents today a brief outline of the swindling corporation's history.

John K. Tener's association with one of the swindlers dates back to 1905, when he cleaned up a small fortune in a deal in partnership. But the present story has to do with his connection with the National Public Utilities Corporation. He was president of it from January 4, 1910, to May 2, 1910, and, so far as the records show, was a director as late as September 22, 1910.

This corporation is fraudulent. It is capitalized at $2,000,000, the issue of "full-paid non-assessable" stock to that amount being a fraud. The issue is based upon the worthless wrecks of four bankrupt corporations and a railroad which exists only upon paper.

The offices of the company are in the Rest Estate Trust Building, Broad and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia.

Among the promoters of it, business associates of John K. Tener, are the following:

Frank L. Smart, who was vice president and general manager. He has been for years a close friend and business associate of John K. Tener, and is a professional promoter of swindlers. He floated the Investment Sales Agency, with a capital of $300,000 and as assets his "ability to sell stock," nothing else. He also floated the Culp Furnace Construction Company, which had no assets except an agent's selling contract to sell fur-

Mrs. James Grubb

The announcement of the death of Carrie Belle, beloved wife of James Grubb of Clearville, Friday morning, October 7, cast a cloud of sorrow over all faces. Seldom have we heard more general sorrow expressed than over the death of this noble woman.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Grubb became ill of typhoid fever. The progress of the disease was watched between alternating hope and fear but Friday morning, at 7 o'clock the summons came and her spirit was set free and her suffering and sorrow were over. Death is always sad but especially so when it removes from us such a bright and shining light.

Carrie Belle Barney was a daughter of Rev. John and Elizabeth Barney and was born September 4, 1875, at Springfield, Va. Barney of Defiance and Miss Louie at home, and a half-brother, J. S. Barney of Clearville.

The funeral was held Sunday morning in the Union Church, the services being conducted by Revs. J. Guidin and D. G. Hetrick. Interment at that place. Mrs. Grubb's death is mourned by all and she will be greatly missed in the community. Clearville, October 10, 1910.

Several years ago he was united in marriage with Miss May Bortz, eldest daughter of J. C. Bortz of West Pitt Street, who survives him; he also leaves his parents and one brother, Roy M.

For about three years Mr. Griffith edited and published the Osterburg News and conducted a job printing office at that place. He moved to Bedford a little over a year ago and had been traveling for a Baltimore phosphate firm. He came home from a trip through the south feeling ill and his decline was rapid. Deceased was a member of St. John's Reformed Church of this place and of St. Clairsville Lodge No. 922, I. O. O. F.

Rev. J. A. Eyer conducted short funeral services at the home at 8 a. m. yesterday, after which the body was taken to Fishertown, where services were held in the Reformed Church. The local lodge of Odd Fellows was represented at the funeral.

Big Splinter in Face

An operation was performed at the City Hospital, Johnstown, last Friday by Dr. Keiper of that city and Dr. H. I. Shoonthal of New Paris upon Calvin Good, a sawyer from the last named place. It was discovered that a splinter almost an inch long and about a quarter of an inch thick had been imbedded in his face for over four years, unknown to him and a couple physicians who had attended him.

Good was engaged at his work of sawyer over four years ago, when a piece of edging from a chestnut plank struck him in the face, cutting a terrible gash under his right eye. The wound refused to heal, despite medical attention, and recently he decided to undergo an operation at the hospital. It was while trying to get at the bottom of the trouble with the wound that the large splinter was found.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MEETING

Temperance Advocates Discuss Topics in Bedford M. E. Church.

Members of the Anti-Saloon League held a meeting in the M. E. Church here Monday afternoon. After being called to order "Pennsylvania Shall Yet Be Free" was sung.

Rev. Dr. Patch of Altoona, one of the Vice Presidents of the League, presided. Rev. E. L. Eslinger of Saxton being called said that this is the most critical time in the history of the temperance cause in Bedford County because the population is such as to entitle it to a separate judge to be appointed by the next Governor, whoever he may be; if the temperance vote falls off this fall it may be construed by the new judicial authority to mean that we are tired of this temperance reform, and particularly so if said Judge should be appointed by a Governor who is not a friend of temperance.

John T. Matt, the Democratic candidate for the General Assembly, came before the meeting and stated that he, if elected, would not only vote but would work for the best Local Option bill that would come before the Legislature.

Dr. Carroll, State Secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, said that by the last of this week they would be ready to point out to the voters of this great state every temperance candidate. He also said: "We have a greater foe to fight than our fathers had from '61 to '65; our slavery is greater today than that of the colored man before the war."

"We must be firm in the fight; never give up, victory at the polls, this fall does not end the battle but we must keep on until every saloon is driven from the land and every shop closed where the alcoholic beverage is sold."

The meeting closed with the choir's singing, "It's Up to You."

Wreck at Madley

Passenger train No. 251, running from Cumberland to Altoona which leaves Cumberland at 7:35 a. m., was derailed at 8:20 o'clock Sunday at Madley, just above Hyndman. The engine was thrown over on its side, the tender, combination passenger and baggage car, and the first coach were derailed, while the front trucks of the second coach also left the track. The Pullman car was not derailed. None of the twenty-six passengers were injured, although all had narrow escapes.

The accident was caused by a loose rod casting dropping off a freight train, which had gone over the road ahead, falling on a switch rod, breaking it and causing the switch point to stand open. When the passenger train struck the switch it was derailed. "Red" Johnson, engineer, and H. B. Miller, fireman, went over with the engine. The passengers were transferred. The train is due here at 8:55 but did not arrive until noon. The train from Altoona was delayed only 20 minutes at the scene of the wreck.

Lectures Next Week

Delos Edwin Finks of New York has consented to deliver two of his most celebrated lectures in Bedford next week. He has chosen as his subjects, "The Forgotten People of the Southland," and "Alaska and Its Gold." The lectures are illustrated with superb dissolving views and the pictures are an art gallery in themselves. It has been said that Mr. Finks is the possessor of that rare sixth sense which knows just the thing which will catch and delight the eye. He is a great traveler, and is able to do that great thing which Mr. Emerson talks about,—to see great things, and then to tell what he sees.

The lectures, which are open to the public, are given in the Presbyterian Church, Friday and Sunday evenings, October 21 and 23, at 7:30, when an offering of silver will be received. These pictures never disappoint the people.

ARBOR DAY

Friday, the 28th, Should Be Observed by Schools and Citizens.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Nathan C. Shaeffer has proclaimed Friday, October 28, as the autumnal arbor day. In his proclamation Dr. Shaeffer says:

"The observance of Arbor Day has created a patriotic interest of trees. It has convinced the public of the importance of preventing and stopping forest fires, of the need of re-foresting the vast mountain areas from which the timber has been cut and of the necessity of conserving the forests at the resources of our streams, thereby to regulate the flow of water and to lessen the floods and freshets which rob the land of its soil and fertility.

"Moreover, it is now generally admitted that Arbor Day should be observed when all the country schools are in session. For this purpose, Arbor Day, October 28, 1910, is designated as the autumn Arbor Day and all the schools, both public and private, are hereby urged to observe the day by suitable exercises, especially by the planting of trees. Let us all plant trees and ask others to plant trees. Let us plant trees for fruit, for shade, for beauty and for the sake of the many industries in which wood is used. Let us plant trees for the sake of ourselves and our posterity, for the sake of the nation and of humanity everywhere. Let us put our prayers for the future blessings into visible shape by starting trees that will answer our prayers by making possible the conservation of our national resources and the perpetuation of our national greatness."

The Rock-Flower

Down on the cold gray rocks hard by the sea,

Where earth is bare and bleak, with ne'er a tree

Or blade of grass to show that 'mid the strife

Is aught that bears resemblance unto life,

I found the other day a blossom fair That peeped from out a jagged crevice there,

And held its head as high as any rose That in the soft earth of my garden grows;

Serene 'mid those surroundings, dull and gray,

As any lily was its snow-white spray. It viewed the sea, the rocks, the rugged coast,

As though this were the spot it loved the most,

And uncomplaining lived its little hour

As if 'twere in some well-protected bower

Wherein all joy and hope fulfilled were blest

With harmony, and peace, and sweet content.

'Twas like a word divine sent forth on high,

A whisper faint as some half-hearted sigh,

But thrilling to the soul enmeshed in care

With thoughts of hope to overcome despair!

CATARRH SUFFERERS

Good Thing to Know

If you now own a Hyomei hard rubber inhaler, F. W. Jordan wants you to know that he will sell you a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Remember this, all who suffer with catarrh—a bottle of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) is put up in a separate package and sold for 50 cents, to accommodate the vast army of people who already own a Hyomei inhaler.

F. W. Jordan will sell it to you at that price and give you the opportunity to begin at once to rid yourself of vile catarrh and the snuffling, hawking and spitting that go with it.

Many people through years of neglect have let catarrh get a strong hold upon them.

No matter how chronic your catarrhal troubles, HYOMEI is guaranteed to cure them if you give it half a chance. Just breathe it, that's all, and its healing, soothing, antiseptic properties will make you feel better in a day.

If you own an inhaler get a 50 cent bottle of HYOMEI today. If you do not own a Hyomei inhaler, ask for a $1 outfit, which includes inhaler.

Tuberculosis Germs

"If a person who has tuberculosis drinks out of a cup and then another person should drink out of the same cup before the cup has been washed, the germ may be transmitted in this way," says James Jenkins, Jr., in Wolman's Home Companion for October.

"Boiling water kills germs as effectively as any antiseptic, and dishes should never be considered absolutely clean that have not been washed in this way. Two persons should never use the same towel. The plan of individual washstands, which is so commonly used on the continent of Europe, should be more generally adopted in America.

"If you have a telephone in your house, the mouthpiece of the telephone should be cleaned every day, just as we clean the dishes we use on the table, and should be thoroughly disinfected at least twice a week. Germs of pneumonia, bronchitis, tuberculosis and other things may be caught from a telephone.

"A good formula for a disinfectant is a few drops of formaldehyde in a two-ounce bottle of water, adding enough extract of lavender or some other pleasant-smelling extract, so that the odor remaining after the mouthpiece is cleaned will be agreeable. Any druggist could mix such a disinfectant for you very easily and inexpensively."

CONVENTION SLANDER REFUTED

Berry's Frequently Repeated Falsehood Fully Exposed.

A CAMPAIGN OF MENDACITY

Testimony of Munson Corroborated by Dwyer and the Slander Made to Look Like Public Insult.

Mr. Berry is still reiterating the absurd fiction that the nomination of Senator Grim by the Allentown convention was the result of some sinister deal, of which the withdrawal of C. LaRue Munson was the culmination. He must think the voters of Pennsylvania are a credulous "bunch," to use his own favorite figure of speech. As long ago as the 12th of August Mr. John P. Dwyer, managing editor of the Philadelphia Record, completely exploded and refuted that slander. But Mr. Berry, probably the man most careless of his reputation for veracity who has ever figured in the public life of the commonwealth, imagines that his word will be taken against all evidence, or else he is proceeding on the immoral theory that "a lie well stuck to is as good as the truth."

On the 12th of August Mr. Dwyer gave the reasons "Why Munson Laid Down." He told of conferences that had been held of the leading Democrats of all factions with the view of harmonizing the party. These conferences culminated in the "harmony meeting" held in Harrisburg, under the auspices of the Democratic state central committee, on April 7. "Nothing had been said up to this time," writes Mr. Dwyer, "by any one interested in the movement on the subject of candidates for the offices to be filled in Pennsylvania this year. Following the Harrisburg meeting, however, there was considerable discussion regarding the most available candidate for governor.

"Ex-State Treasurer Berry was already in the field as an active aspirant for the Democratic nomination. He was not popular among many of the earnest Democrats of the state. Many of these had knowledge of the financial transactions between Colonel Guffey and Mr. Berry during the time that the latter was state treasurer of Pennsylvania, as well as the relations of Mr. Berry, while treasurer, to the Harrisburg Trust company, and they felt that, if for no other reason, the stories of these deals, if made public, would discredit the candidacy of Mr. Berry among many people and put the Democratic party on the defensive in the approaching campaign."

No Conditions Put Upon Munson.

After giving in detail and at considerable length the reasons why Mr. Munson was preferred as a candidate to all others who had been suggested, among which were "demands from many county leaders and prospective candidates for the legislature," Mr. Dwyer continued:

"The facts of the Munson fiasco, so far as they were supposed to discreditably involve any one prominent in the Democratic organization, are now known. Painstaking investigation has been made. Nothing has been taken for granted, and all of the circumstantial evidence pointing to duplicity and double dealing and involving one or more Democrats present at Allentown during convention week, has been proven to be worthless as a means of connecting the Democratic leaders in question with the unexpected declination of Mr. Munson on the eve of the Democratic state convention. If Mr. Munson was involved in any deal and impelled by any reasons other than those he has publicly stated for his action, it was not with the knowledge of any member of the Democratic organization, and none of whom were in any way responsible for the principle to which the delegates to the Allentown convention were thrown on the eve of the gathering.

"Immediately following the primary elections when it became known that the efforts of Berry and Grim to capture a majority of the delegates to the state convention had failed, formal pledges of enough delegates to nominate Mr. Munson were made to the Williamsport man. He was given these pledges and assured of the support not only of Colonel Guffey, Senator Hall, Charles P. Donnelly and their friends, but many other Democrats who had long been known as being out of harmony with the Guffey organization without the request of a single pledge involving the conduct of the campaign or the office of governor should be won the election. His nomination was assured, and he was consulted regarding the platform on which he was to make the campaign, responding with a series of planks covering questions of state government.

Berry Interview a Factor.

"The week before the Allentown convention Munson was impressed by an interview credited to Ex-State Treasurer Berry, in which the latter was quoted as stating that if he did not get the Democratic nomination for governor he would run as an independent candidate. That would be useless for him to take the Democratic nomination if Berry ran independently, as that would divide the Democratic and independent vote, and insure the election of the Penrose candidate.

"And so Mr. Munson decided to play politics. He came to Philadelphia and conferred with Mr. Berry's manager, Mr. Bonniwell, urging that gentleman to get his man to stop running for governor, and consent to accept a place on the Democratic ticket for lieutenant governor. Mr. Bonniwell doubted Mr. Munson's ability to get Mr. Berry the nomination for lieutenant governor, but Mr. Munson said he would try.

"Senator Hall, of Elk, was in Philadelphia, and Mr. Munson conferred with him, pleading that Mr. Berry be slated for lieutenant governor. Senator Hall refused to agree to such a proposition. He said that nothing was agreed on except that Munson was to be nominated for governor, and it would be up to the Allentown convention to decide upon the balance of the ticket. Mr. Munson appeared to assume that Senator Hall could handle the office any way he wanted, and threatened to refuse to accept the nomination for governor if Senator Hall would not agree to favor Berry for lieutenant governor.

"To this Hall replied that Munson did not dare take such a step, that the delegates had been elected and he had promised to accept if nominated, and that he could not get out of the race on the pretext that he would not run if Berry was not on the ticket with him as the candidate for lieutenant governor.

Munson Threatens.

"Mr. Munson was much wrought up over the situation. The weather was hot, and shortly after the interview with Senator Hall, and while on his way to a train he was attacked with vertigo, and became so dizzy that he had to be helped to his seat in a parlor car. His illness continued and did not respond readily to the treatment of a Williamsport physician. He left Philadelphia after this conference with Senator Hall on the Thursday previous to the Allentown convention.

"On the following Sunday he again met Senator Hall by appointment at Atlantic City and informed him that the condition of his health worried him; that in addition some private affairs had taken a turn that made it inadvisable for him to continue in politics, and he wished to be relieved of his promise to accept the Democratic nomination for governor. He asked Hall to acquiesce in this decision and look elsewhere for a candidate for governor.

"Senator Hall positively declined to be a party to any such arrangement, and urged Mr. Munson to hold fast to his original position—that if nominated he would accept the Democratic nomination for governor."

Mr. Dwyer then told of the examination of Mr. Munson by a distinguished physician, who declared that his life would be imperiled by a campaign for governor, of the Munson-letter to Mr. Edwards, the confusion which ensued when his declination was made public and the midnight conferences in Allentown, and in conclusion declared:

"Discussion followed of the original objection to Berry on account of the stories of his financial transactions with Colonel Guffey and the Harrisburg Trust company while filling the office of state treasurer, and it was finally decided to urge the nomination of Senator Grim, who was not present during any part of the discussion, and who did not know of the decision reached until after it had been made."

Mr. Dwyer's Testimony Corroborated.

It happens, however, that this testimony of Mr. Dwyer is amply corroborated. On the 23d of June—the Allentown convention was held on the 15th—Mr. Munson wrote to Hon. A. G. Dewalt, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, as follows:

"My Dear Dewalt—Absence from town, caused by illness, and later to preside at the annual meeting of the alumni of the Yale law school at New Haven, has prevented me from writing this letter sooner.

"It is due to you and to others to say that the withdrawal of my name from consideration for nomination for the governorship was not caused by any act of yourself, Colonel Guffey or other Democratic leaders or by reason of any condition made by you or them, and you are not in any manner subject to criticism for my action, and I need not say to you nor to any fair-minded person that there was not any deal of any sort, kind or description involved in my declination of the nomination."

Does Mr. Berry imagine that in the face of this cumulative evidence that there was no conspiracy to defeat him or nominate Senator Grim for a sinister purpose, that an intelligent public will accept the futilities of his "grouch" as facts? Such a thing is preposterous and an insult to the intelligence of the people of Pennsylvania. Mr. Berry was defeated in the Allentown convention because a vast majority of the delegates believed him to be an unsafe candidate, and his subsequent actions have completely vindicated the accuracy of their judgment.

Voters in cities of the third class should prepare now for the third and last registration day, which is the most important one of the three. It is fixed for Saturday, Oct. 22, between the hours of 8 in the morning and 1 in the afternoon; 2 in the afternoon and 6 in the evening, and from 7 in the evening until 10 at night.

Remember, each male taxpayer must register once a year in September or October, in cities of the third class, if he wishes to vote.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as to out-fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

ARAB ENCAMPMENTS.

The Crowded Tents in Which the Shepherd Warriors Live.

Arabs are true Ishmaelites. Their life is a constant wandering. They live entirely on the produce of their herds. Their tents are quickly taken down or put up and easy of transport. They are made of camel's hair, loosely woven, supported on poles or long guy ropes. They protect the occupants from the hot sun, but not from the rain, and in winter the encampments are uncomfortable places.

The interior is crowded with all the belongings of these shepherd warriors—camel saddles and gaudy saddle-bags, rifles and ammunition, hunting dogs and falcons. The women occupy one half; the men use the other, partitioned off by a brightly colored curtain. The whole of the front of the tent being open, there is no privacy. The average tent measures twenty yards by six.

The chief of the tribe, however, owns many tents, and he has for his own use one giant structure, sometimes spread over a length of thirty-six yards. In his other tents the chief keeps his numerous wives, who have a certain proportion of their master's flocks and herds to look after. Having a separate tent for each wife, he thus does away with all chance of domestic quarrels.—Argonaut.

THREE YEARS LATE.

A Train That Won the Behind Time Record Medal.

A train of a railway system in the southwest once arrived at its destination nearly three years late. The circumstances were these:

The train left Bolivar, just across Galveston bay from Galveston, on Sept. 8, 1900, and was caught in the great storm that so nearly destroyed the Texan city. Bolivar is seventy-five miles from Beaumont, which was the point of the train's destination. Before the train had traveled far on its journey it was caught in the storm. Thirty miles of the track were washed away, and the train was left stranded on a sandy waste. Many persons who lived on Bolivar peninsula were saved from death by taking refuge in the train. After the storm subsided they walked to Bolivar with the passengers, but the abandoned train was left on the prairie.

The storm bankrupted the railway, and no effort to rescue the engine and cars was made until 1903. Had not the road suffered so seriously in that storm the property would have proved of great value a few months later, when oil was struck at Beaumont. In 1903, however, the road underwent repairs, when the train was drawn into Beaumont, where it was greeted by a cheering crowd.—New York Press.

The Diplomatic Room.

One of the most interesting and most visited places in Washington is the diplomatic reception room in the department of state, where the secretary of state transacts his business with the envoys of foreign governments. This room is close to the secretary's office and looks southward to the Potomac, the Washington monument looming up with stately effect at the left. Thursday of each week is set apart for the diplomatists, who are received in this famous room by the secretary of state or the official who may be acting in his absence. The room itself when not occupied by the foreign representatives is open to the public. In it most of our treaties of recent years have been signed, and many have been the notable assemblages gathered within its walls.—New York Press.

Prices Paid by Forty-niners.

Here is the price list on the "carte" of the Eldorado hotel of Placerville, Cal., in the days when it entertained the forty-niners. "Payable in advance," it proclaims: "gold scales at the end of bar."

A "square meal, with dessert," is priced at $3, and other items that probably interested the patrons of the Eldorado are set forth as follows: Beef, Mexican prime cut, $1.50; beef, upland, $1.50; beef, plain, $1; beef with a potato, fat size, $1.25; beef, same, from the states, $1.50; also two potatoes, medium size, 50 cents; two potatoes, peeled, 75 cents; hash, low grade, 75 cents; hash, 18 carat, $1; rice pudding, plain, 75 cents; rice pudding and brandy peaches, $1.—Los Angeles Times.

ARSENIC POISONING.

The Torture That Ensues Before Death Brings Relief.

When a single dose of arsenic in sufficient quantity to be felt has been taken colicky pains, bowel disorder and perhaps nausea result. In the course of an hour after a poisonous dose has been taken an intense burning pain is felt in the esophagus and stomach. This spreads to the entire anterior portion of the lower part of the trunk. A sense of constriction at the throat and an acrid, metallic taste accompany the pain. Then vomiting and relaxation of the bowels begin. As the case progresses the symptoms increase in intensity. Then comes a thirst that water will not allay, although it apparently increases the stomach disturbance. The victim groans and writhes.

Now he implores the doctor to save him. Then he begs to be killed and put out of pain. The extremities become icy. The pulse is small, feeble and frequent, and the breathing is labored, embarrassed and painful because of abdominal tenderness. The surface of the body becomes dark and of that bluish color that medical men call cyanosis. Violent cramps add their torture. Exhaustion becomes collapse, convulsions or coma ensues, and death ends the agony. The torture lasts sometimes from five to twenty hours.

In some cases these symptoms occur, but in a modified form, and the doctor will apparently get the better of the disease. The remission will be but for a day or two. Then the abdomen will swell, and icy coldness will pervade the frame. Shivering will become pronounced, trembling, then cramps, convulsions and death.

Literary Firsts and Seconds.

The youthful newspaper reporter who has visions of being a famous author is still wondering over the epigram made by a successful conferee when the latter noted his disappointment over the return of a manuscript.

"I thought sure," said the reporter, with a sigh, "that that confounded story would sell. It's good stuff, if I did write it, and I am certainly surprised that it came back."

The successful writer grinned and then placed his hand on the other man's shoulder.

"My dear boy," he said, somewhat grimly, "there are only two stages in the life of a writer. One is when he is surprised at getting his stories back and the second when he is surprised at not getting them back. You're in the first; I'm in the second. And there you are."

But the reporter is still wondering.—Philadelphia Times.

Escorted Her Anyway.

While Robert Browning and his son Barrett were living alone in Florence the son gave one afternoon an exhibition of his new paintings in the family drawing room. To Mr. Browning was assigned the task of meeting the guests. Late in the afternoon, when the room was well filled, there appeared at the drawing room door a woman whose face was familiar. Yet Mr. Browning could not recall her name, and he judged from her appearance that she was not an invited guest.

There was embarrassment on both sides for a moment, and then the woman said eagerly: "Oh, please, Mr. Browning, I'm the cook. Mr. Barrett said as I was to come and see his pretty picture."

Whereupon Mr. Browning, offering his arm, showed her about the room with all the attention that he could have bestowed upon a reigning queen.

The Rat and the Bulbs.

According to the French naturalist De Parville, a gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that the bulbs had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

GRIM CAPTURES COUNTIES WEST

His Tour From Beaver to Erie
A Continuous Ovation.

RAPIDLY GAINING GROUND

Reports of Democratic Disaffection Disproved by the Voters in Person Who Greet Grim.

Webster Grim, Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, whirled through Beaver county Monday afternoon in a rapid-fire canvass of a district claimed confidently by both Tener and Berry as their own peculiar territory. With County Chairman James Anderson, Jr., as guide, and accompanied on various stages of the trip by veteran Democrats, who added their high personal indorsement without reserve or hesitation to the fine impression which the candidate everywhere makes for himself, he visited every section of the four busy townships clustered here in the beautiful Beaver valley, and was cordially received by scores of voters.

The day ended with an informal reception at the Grand hotel, in Beaver Falls, where he was again presented to several hundred men from all parts of the county. "Beaver county is swinging into line," was the message with which he was greeted everywhere.

"The Democrats are no longer chasing will o' the wisp in this good Democratic year, and we of Beaver county are coming to our senses," was the way one live young man put it, who has been lending his influence to the bolters. There is unanimous approval among Democratic workers here for the sensible and courageous stand taken by Senator Grim on the sleek and slippery fusion proposition. "There have been months to talk of that," they say. "Why this eleven-hour resurrection of the scheme? We understand the extreme exigencies of the Keystone situation, and we are not misled by any side talk."

The most surprising event of the day, however, was the turnout at the reception in the evening, which was attended by fully 200 voters of all parties. In view of the extravagant claims of the opponents of the Democratic candidate, the number of those who chose to do honor to Senator Grim is somewhat disconcerting to the leaders of the organization. It apparently confirms the predictions and opinions of close observers that the time is surely turning in this corner of the state as elsewhere, and that the race is no walkover, even here, for the Penrose and assistant Penrose candidates.

Grim's Sincerity Wins in Butler.

The address of Senator Grim at Butler, Pa., won many votes to his cause. His sincerity was so apparent that many men who have been on the other side frankly pledged him their support. He exposed the reckless extravagance in the state administration, contrasting the $1,300,000 spent for maintenance of government under Governor Pattison with the millions required by Republican regimes.

Senator Grim then addressed himself to the laboring men present, with a short recital of the bills in their behalf which he had favored and helped to enact, including the employers' liability bill, the abrogation of the fellow servant rule and similar measures. He closed with a vigorous denial of reflections upon the honesty and sincerity of the campaign, saying in part: "I ask only fair play and plain justice from those who are sincerely questioning my character and motives. I ask them only to stop and consider the open facts, which are still undecided."

"I ask them if they are willing to convict me without proof, and on the word of my enemies. I appeal to them to examine my record, and I challenge any man to find in that record one single instance, in all my eight years of service in the state senate, where I have voted for a measure advocated by or for the benefit of Senator Penrose or his machine."

Stirs Up Lawrence County.

Senator Grim as Democratic candidate for governor was greeted in New Castle, Pa., Wednesday night by fully 1000 hearers, when he opened his meeting on the public square. Determined to disprove the exaggerated reports sent out by Keystone lieutenants to the effect that Lawrence county would give Berry a clean sweep at the polls, New Castle Democrats turned out in force to greet their standard-bearer and to pledge him their whole-hearted support on election day.

Leaders from all parts of the county brought reports of dwindling strength of the bolters in Democratic ranks, and assured Senator Grim that his straightforward campaign, devoid of mud slinging or personal malice, and with refreshing emphasis on the real issues of the fight, had won back many of the honest Democrats who had been misled. Nothing is more certain than the decided drift of Democrats back to the party in Lawrence and every other county which Senator Grim has entered in the past week, and Democrats all along the line are showing more fight than seemed possible a month ago. Not a few leaders of the Keystone movement in the county were among those who called upon

Senator Grim, and many of them admitted after seeing him that they had been misled into doing him injustice. They showed their willingness to retrace their steps, return to the fold and take off their coats for the candidate, as they had prepared to do for the bolters until this change of heart.

Senator Grim arrived in New Castle at 10 o'clock and was escorted to the St. Cloud hotel, where he went into conference with local leaders. His appearance in the lobby of the hotel after lunch was the signal for a general reunion of Democrats, who crowded the parlors throughout the afternoon. "In Lawrence county, as in every other county in the state, I have been surprised at the rapidity of the change of sentiment in my favor, and I am more confident than ever that we will give Mr. Tener the fight of his life on election day," said Senator Grim, and the sentiment was echoed by at least a dozen of the strongest leaders, who added that Lawrence county would line up nearly if not all its full Democratic strength in behalf of the ticket before election day has rolled around.

Mercer County Returning to Reason.

Torrents of rain failed to dampen the ardor of the Mercer county Democrats on behalf of their state ticket and they gathered 500 strong Thursday night in the Buhl Armory, at Sharon, Pa., to listen to able addresses upon the leading issues of the campaign by Webster Grim, candidate for governor, and Thomas H. Greevy, candidate for lieutenant governor, the latter of whom rejoined the campaigning party after three days' absence.

Taking advantage of his visit in the vicinity of the immense plant of the United States Steel corporation, at South Sharon, Senator Grim, for the first time made public his replies to a long series of questions propounded by the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, touching upon nearly every important labor problem of the time. In every case the speaker was able to prove the sincerity of his words by referring to the record of his actual votes and labors in the state senate, and the directness of his answers showing his friendliness to the just demands of the workers, without surrendering his judgment to that of labor leaders, won frequent and prolonged applause from the large number of workmen present.

Senator Grim and his party arrived on schedule time in Sharon, bringing with them the rainstorm. Despite the inclement weather, they found a large delegation of well known Democrats from all parts of the county ready to greet them, and were escorted to the Gable tavern, where an informal reception was held. For more than an hour Senator Grim was kept busy accepting the congratulations of his many friends in this section and consulting with them regarding the outlook for Democratic success in November. He was told in no uncertain terms that the reports of disaffection were practically groundless, and that the Democrats were lining their full strength against the gang, preparatory to making a clean sweep of the legislative, congressional and state tickets.

The situation looks better every day, the leaders declare, and, judging from the numbers and enthusiasm of the prominent men present, their confidence seems fully justified.

The same story was told at Greenville, where the party spent the afternoon. There was scarcely a discordant note in the chorus of optimism and harmony. Senator Grim was particularly gratified here by the greeting which he received from the workers of outlying districts, who had braved the muddy roads, cold rain and biting wind to extend their welcome and to show their loyalty. The lobby of the hotel was crowded throughout the afternoon, among the visitors being many whose influence up to this time had been thrown to the advantage of the bolters and who were won over by boots and baggage by the frank and fair statement of the case by Senator Grim.

Crawford and Erie Counties.

The week was finished in equally satisfactory visits in Crawford and Erie counties. Crawford was reported as being in revolt from one end to the other. Whereas the candidates found the greatest enthusiasm for the party and the ticket. In Erie conditions are exceptionally favorable. Senator Grim will not only get the normal Democratic vote, but a considerable number of Republicans are earnestly supporting him, while the election of Brooks, Democratic candidate for congress is absolutely certain.

The President and the Railroads.

[From the Florida Times-Union.] While Roosevelt was president the Times-Union asserted that the president violated a moral law in demanding or accepting such service (free transportation) and that the roads violated statutes to give such service—statutes which it was the duty of the president to enforce. But President Roosevelt also demanded trains of Pullmans; he demanded special services of preferred wines and cigars and attendance; he called for such service whether he travelled on a political circuit for the support of a party, to lay a corner stone or to go bear hunting.

FARM NOTES

Bran is one of the dairy cow's best foods. It contains bulk to make it digestible and protein and ash to form milk. Bran and cornmeal form one of the best combination dairy feeds.

A dairy cow is better without horns, but when you take them off make a neat job of it—in other words, use an approved instrument and do the work right.

Farmers all over the country are taking great interest in tree planting, both for ornamentation and utility. Every farm should have an acre or more of grove or wood lot. It adds beauty to the general farm landscape, and it is a refreshing retreat to man and farm animals in summer and will also grow into money fast as the years go by.

Before attempting to churn be sure and ripen the cream properly. Do not mix any fresh cream with that which is intended for churning within at least twelve hours before churning.

Don't forget that sweet milk and sour cream do not churn alike, and if mixed just at churning time the butter contained in the sweet milk would go out in the buttermilk when the sour cream portion would be finished churning. Don't fail to stir the cream gently at intervals while ripening so that it will all ripen uniformly.

We have a remedy that has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

ARE YOU A FISHER?

American Heirs Looking After Big Estate in Germany.

More than 150 years ago, there lived in Germany a wealthy baron named Ludwig von Fischer. All the Fishers used to spell their name with a "c" in it; that was the German way of spelling it, just as the Sniders spelled their name Schneider.

Well, the German government became a little short of funds one time, and Baron Fischer made the government a loan at four per cent. The baron had a son, who fooling around with a gun one day, shot one of the deer in the king's park. This would have been an unlucky day for the young Fischer, if he had not gotten some money from the old gentleman, and skipped to this country. After a time the father died, and as no word could be had from the son, the government just kept the money on interest, piling it up and up, until now it amounts to more than eighty millions of dollars, and it belongs to the descendants of the deer hunter, who settled somewhere in Pennsylvania, Maryland or Virginia.

The American heirs have employed an attorney and sent him to Germany and he cables back that the money is there, and all that is needed is to establish the line of ancestry. So, if your name is Fisher, or you are a descendant of the Fisher family, you can get into this by sending as nearly as you can your family history as far back as possible to Mrs. M. B. Sloan, 3612 Wabash Avenue, Kansas City, Mo. You are not asked to send any money.—Exchange.

"Have you written all the invitations to my party, mamma?" queried little Eva.

"Yes, dear," answered her mother. "They are all written and mailed."

Killing Moths in Bookcases

An Easton booklover, Miss —, finding that her bookcase had been invaded by moths, which were threatening serious damage to the volumes contained therein, wrote to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, for instructions in regard to getting rid of the pests. Prof. Surface replied as follows:

"You can destroy the silver-tail moth in your bookcase by fumigating with Hydrocyanic Acid gas. This is a deadly poison for one to breathe, but you can do the work safely by following directions here given. Determine the cubic contents of the case by multiplying together the depth, height and width. For each 100 cubic feet of space you will want one ounce of Cyanide of Potassium, two ounces of Sulfuric Acid, and four ounces of water. Pour it into an earthen vessel that will hold two or three times as much as the liquid takes; put in the acid and water, and have the Cyanide ready in a thin paper bag at one side. Open the door and window of your room to ventilate it, but be prepared to close the bookcase tight, and instantly drop the Cyanide into the case and keep your room well ventilated. Keep the bookcase tightly closed for at least two hours. It might be well to ventilate other adjacent rooms at the same time. Then, by holding the breath, open the bookcase, and go out of the room, and, of course, have no pets in the room during ventilation. After it has been ventilated one-half hour all will be well, and you can remove the surplus liquid from the jar and throw it out, so that it will not come in contact with plants or metals. This treatment will not injure the most delicate fabric, and will be perfectly safe and effective. I should not think for a moment of using sulfur fumes because of the undesirable and even dangerous results."

Curing a Cold

In its early stages a cold may be stopped by the use of a very simple remedy—camphor. If the chest seems "tight," rub it thoroughly with equal parts of sweet oil and camphor, and wear a compress during the night of flannel saturated with the mixture, heated and covered with dry flannel. Three or four drops of camphor in a glass of hot water taken at night are excellent.

If the throat is a little sore, use a gargle of ten drops of camphor to a tablespoonful of water, being careful not to swallow this, says The "Family Doctor." Rubbing the nose with sweet oil and camphor, and inhaling the fumes of the latter, will help matters when the head feels so full with a fresh cold.

GRIM OR BERRY

The election is not far in the future and it is the duty of Democrats to sit down under cover of their thinking caps and quietly consider the candidates for Governor, as well as other candidates on the ticket.

It cannot be denied that there is a sentiment of considerable proportions in this county for Ex-State Treasurer William H. Berry, who made an excellent record as head of the financial department of our State Government. But why should he be preferred to Senator Grim for Governor under existing conditions?

Let us take that sober second thought. It is a foundation principle of Democracy that the majority shall rule. Munson out of the way, for reasons that have already been explained in The Gazette, and, we believe, valid reasons, there were before the Allentown convention but two names for the Democratic nomination for Governor, Webster Grim and William H. Berry. Mr. Berry had endeared himself to many voters of the state because of his work as State Treasurer and a tremendous effort had been made to have delegates instructed for him to the convention.

Senator Grim's record in the House and Senate is clean. He had fought many fights in the interest of the people and for the honor of the state, though he was not so widely known as Mr. Berry.

The time came for the convention.

The names of Grim and Berry were presented and the vote was taken, and Mr. Grim won.

He was not The Gazette's choice, but when he was nominated he was the Democratic candidate and was and is today deserving of the support of the Democracy of the State, having a clean record in politics and nothing derogatory to his character as a man having been asserted and his ability being admitted.

The delegates from this county, one of whom was instructed for Berry the other two being uninstructed, all voted for Berry because they thought that the sentiment in this county was for him. He went down in the ballot. Defeated in the convention, he at the time thought he should support Mr. Grim, and pledged, on the floor of the convention, Mr. Grim's hand in his, his support to and influence for the ticket nominated, which was commendable and in accord with the principles of Democracy. Some days later he again pledged his support and then allowed his name to be used at the head of the ticket of the Keystone party.

Does this look good to the thinking voter? If Mr. Berry's motives were purely patriotic; if he desired to serve the people of the state and not merely gain glory for himself, why did he not accept the nomination for State Treasurer or Auditor General, in either of which offices he could have been of service in that he would have access to the books and could block any steal or crookedness? He could have had either without asking—by simply accepting. But no! he would be bell-sheep or nothing.

In the light of these facts which led to the nomination of Mr. Grim why are some Democrats for Mr. Berry and the Keystone ticket which is designed to disrupt the Democracy of the State?

Some say Penrose made the nomination. What evidence has been produced to prove this? Any man or any journal can make a statement, but a man who is a man and a journal that is true will not make a statement without facts to substantiate that statement. Mr. Grim has repeatedly in his addresses defied his maligners to produce any evidence of his having been implicated in any deal with Penrose or anybody else in connection with the Allentown convention, and the evidence has not been produced. Further, he has declared his determination, if elected, to be his own master, and if we may judge the future by the past he will be; his record is an open book.

Others say he should have pulled off the ticket at the behest of those ten men, self-appointed, who requested both him and Berry to withdraw. To have done so would not only have shown cowardice but would have caused a cloud of suspicion to rest upon him during the remainder of his days that he was guilty of some dastardly political deal and was afraid of exposure. He stayed on the ticket as any other man of courage would have done and defies his enemies to produce evidence to substantiate their malicious accusations.

Is it not just as reasonable to suppose that Penrose had a finger in the formation of the Keystone party and in influencing those ten men who addressed the letters to Berry and Grim as that he had anything to do with the result of the Allentown convention?

If the people of the state want to get rid of Penroseism is it the part of wisdom to divide the opposition to him and his machine?

GLORIOUS!!!

Wouldn't it be nice to have a Governor of Pennsylvania who is charged with having sold his name for $50,000 worth of stock and the Presidency of a $2,000,000 Fraudulent corporation, at a salary of $5,000 a year; and in case of his death to have a Lieutenant Governor succeed him who is noted for breaking political promises and personal pledges alike—a man "absolutely colorless" in Congress, who failed as a candidate for Congress to carry his home ward, his home town and his home county, all of which are Republican? Great is the state, in the largest city of which rang out the iron music that declared "liberty throughout the land and to all the inhabitants thereof." No wonder the bell is cracked!

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

Will the County Commissioners again place the printing of the November election ballots without allowing the printshops of the county and elsewhere to bid on the same, and thus pay out of the funds of the County more than they would need to pay if they would be given out after receiving bids? By their present method they have twice placed in the hands of voters ballots not in legal form. What will they do with the ballots for the November election? Will they again trust a printshop that furnished them illegal ballots?

LITTLE JOURNEYS

Little Journeys is a title that rightfully belongs to a pamphlet or magazine published by Fra Elbertus. Chief of the Roycrofters, but with his permission we'll make use of it for a few weeks. We select it because of its appropriateness for our journeys will not extend beyond the confines of the county; perhaps not beyond the Court House. There are things the people should know.

A MIGHTY LEADER

Wednesday's Altoona Tribune contained an article on "Raising Campaign Fund," which concluded by saying: "It has been announced that Bedford is interested in Berry and Gibboney and that a delegation headed by Attorney Daniel Horn will come to the city to attend the mass meeting next Monday."

When one looks upon the forest or even the shade trees with their variegated leaves at this season it is difficult to understand what the North American meant when it characterized Congressman John M. Reynolds, the present candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket, as "absolutely colorless." But then, maybe, Senator Penrose wanted a plain canvas so that he could decorate it to suit himself.

The papers this week contain an account of the hero of San Juan Hill (?) up in the air sailing in an aeroplane in the west. Judging from the difference in his western and eastern speeches he may be expected to be found traveling in subways when he returns to the east.

Those who assert that the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is beyond possibility are not familiar with the political record of John M. Reynolds, the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

If this dry weather continues until the November election there will be a sorry look upon the face of Thomas Bradley, the Republican candidate for the Legislature.

Go By the Name

The way to buy paint is to go by the name. There is a name never seen on sham paint or weak paint or short-measure paint: Devoe.

There are a hundred different names in paint. Some are sham; some weak; some short-measure; and some all three.

If there is another such paint as Devoe lead-and-zinc, we don't know it. There are a few fairly good paints; a few; only one Devoe. A gallon Devoe is worth a gallon and a half of those few.

Mr. Aaron Higgins, of Plainfield, N. J., always used 15 gallons of mixed paint for his house. Last spring he bought 15 gallons of Devoe and had 4 gallons left.

Huston to Be Sentenced

A new trial has been denied to Joseph M. Huston, half-million dollar architect of the Pennsylvania state capitol. He has been ordered to appear in Harrisburg Saturday morning to receive sentence for conspiring to cheat and defraud the state in furnishing desks for the celebrated House of Scandal. He was convicted last April.

Huston is at present on $60,000 bail. The maximum sentence which can be imposed upon him for conspiracy to defraud the state is two years, but under the new indeterminate sentence law it would be possible, should the board of prison inspectors, the board of pardons and the Governor of the state approve, for him to get off with serving only six months, or for one-fourth the time of the maximum sentence imposed on him by the court.

naces. This contract he found it convenient to break after he had sold large quantities of the stock.

It was Smart who put his friend Tener into the swindling National Public Utilities Corporation. He resigned the presidency, elected Tener to that office, and put through the motion giving Tener a $5,000 salary and $50,000 stock. Smart now runs a fake called the Standard Banking Securities Company, Perry Building, Sixteenth and Chestnut Streets, one of the fiscal agents of the swindling corporation.

Linwood Haines, of Haines & Co., Bailey Building, 1218 Chestnut Street, fiscal agents for the swindling National Public Utilities Corporation. He is a convicted swindler, and is now under suspended sentence for obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with a wrecked corporation, much stock of which has been absorbed by the Tener company. On the day after he was released under suspended sentence he was given 2,500 shares of stock in the Tener corporation, to be sold on commission. He gave his personal note, without security, for the stock. At a meeting in February, 1910, President Tener and Haines were the moving spirits in outlining the future policy of the swindling National corporation.

Philip C. Adams, a tool of Smart and his partner in the Standard Banking Securities Company. He was also associated with Smart in the promotion of the worthless Investment Sales Agency and the Culm Furnace Construction Company. He is a bankrupt.

Thomas Bromley, Jr., formerly director and now assistant secretary of the swindling National Public Utilities Corporation. He is a bankrupt. In 1908 he was arrested in New York for issuing $20,000 notes, which he disposed of on the strength of a statement of his financial condition. He was in jail from April 30 to June 18, but escaped conviction on a technicality.

Needless to say, a group of respectable names was added to this malodorous list. Thus among the directors of the Tener company have been Simon Merrill, president of the Yost Manufacturing Company of Meadville; William B. Margerum, a prominent merchant in the Reading Terminal; General Russell Thayer, Colonel William Bender Wilson, formerly of the Pennsylvania Railroad; W. W. Pinkerton of the Pinkerton Construction Company, and Frederick Schoff, a manufacturer at Twenty-Sixth and Callowhill Streets.

The Sleepwalker

By ARTHUR EDWARDS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

And so, my boy, you're going to the city to take a position in business. It's more than seventy years since I did the same thing myself.

When I was your age I was apprenticed to a New York china merchant. The apprentice usually lived in the family of his employer, and I lived with the Van Horns. Mr. Van Horn's office was on the ground floor of his house, the living rooms being upstairs. The house stood on the bank of the East river, and from it we could see the ships in which he was interested come in to the slips on the other side of the street, poking their bowsprits almost in at our windows.

I was but fourteen years of age when I was apprenticed to Mr. Van Horn. He had but one child, Katherine, who was twelve, to whom I soon stood as a brother. Before the term of my apprenticeship had expired we had become lovers, and I preferred to remain where I was rather than accept a position that would separate me from Katherine. But of this Mr. Van Horn was ignorant.

Meanwhile Mrs. Van Horn had died, and her place in the household management was taken by a housekeeper, a middle aged widow named Clark. Mrs. Clark had no sooner come into the family than it was apparent that she aimed at marrying Mr. Van Horn. By that time I was nineteen years old and Katherine was sixteen. It was natural that we should unite against the common enemy, for Katherine was up in arms against any one who aspired to take her mother's place.

During my boyhood I became a somnambulist. The first time I walked in my sleep I awoke to find myself standing before a mirror brushing my hair. I was terribly shocked and, running to my bed, covered my head and lay trembling till morning. Another time, when the bowsprit of a large ship extended over the house, I found myself one night on the bowsprit. I saved myself from falling into the street by catching a rope. I had gone on to the roof, got on to the bowsprit and was shining down.

At that time there were no safes such as we have now. A modern safe compared with the strong box of that day is like an ocean liner compared with one of the caravels in which Columbus crossed the Atlantic. I well remember the strong box Mr. Van Horn kept in one of the rooms on the main floor of his house, a room he used for his private office. It was covered with strips of iron interlaced like basketwork. But it was opened by a big iron key that would now serve for a stable door.

All of a sudden Mr. Van Horn began to miss important papers from his strong box. He confided his loss to Mrs. Clark, and there was at once a great change in his treatment of me. It was plain to me that she had not only opened his eyes to my relations with his daughter, of which he had been oblivious, but she led him to suspect that I was stealing his papers.

She herself was oblivious to nothing that was going on and had not only discovered that Katherine and I were lovers, but that we stood in her way to become Mrs. Van Horn. But Mr. Van Horn was a secretive man, and though he was seriously poisoned against me and was ambitious for his daughter to become the wife of an eminent man, he pretended to disbelieve the charge against me, preferring to set a watch upon me without letting any one in the house know that he was doing so. He slept with his door open at the other end of the hall, on which my room also faced, and since he was a light sleeper it was almost impossible for me to leave my room without his knowing it.

Well, one night I woke up from one of my somnambulist walks, and my astonishment was as great as, if not greater than, ever before. I was standing in the counting room on the main floor, Mr. Van Horn was standing in the door that opened into his private office, while by the light of a candle Mrs. Clark was seen kneeling beside the strong box.

"Go to your room," said Mr. Van Horn to me.

I lost no time in doing so, but soon recovered from the shock of my sudden awakening from somnambulism for I saw that my physical defect had made a great change in the situation. The next morning I saw Mrs. Clark packing to leave, and before noon she was out of the house, never to return.

As soon as she had gone Mr. Van Horn called me into his private office and told me of the loss of his papers, his consultation with his housekeeper, and her turning his suspicions against me. The night before he had heard me get out of bed and, going himself into the hall, had seen me start on what he soon became convinced was a somnambulist tour. He and I were both in our bare feet and moved with a catlike tread. When he saw me go down into the office it occurred to him that I was stealing his papers in my sleep. But instead of that I was leading him to the thief, who was at that time engaged in removing more papers from his strong box.

Considering that I had saved him from the toils of a bad woman and that he discovered Katherine's strong love for me, Mr. Van Horn consented to our engagement and afterward when we were married, made me his partner.

Cause for Rejoicing

"Life Insurance is a good thing." So spoke a friend of the writer. The man is glad that he has an endowment policy bought when he was young and the cost small. Today he could not get it—disease has stolen upon him. But he has his policy and is happy—his family will not suffer! Did you not read of John Fletcher's death by falling from a wagon? A similar accident might happen to you, brother. Are you insured? In what condition will you leave your family when your hour comes? Give me your age and I will hand you for inspection a sample policy in the great Provident Life and Trust of Philadelphia, the company organized by our friends, the Friends.

The Men Who Died in the Alamo

In the frontispiece of the October Sports Afield we have a rare portrait of Davy Crockett, the famous hunter, which is followed by an article describing how Crockett, Bowie, Travis and their men all died the death of heroes. Nature's Own, a capital story of cowboy life, is followed by an exploring trip to Hudson's Bay and the Barren Grounds. Warren Smith writes of The Big Trout of the Jam Pool and Frank Stick tells of the splendid sport to be enjoyed in Northern Wisconsin. The Pony Express of the early sixties (from St. Joseph to Sacramento); Pioneer Life in Indiana; An October Grouse Hunt; Carrier Pigeons in Michigan; Hunting the Wild Pig; Some Memories of Mark Twain, and a dozen other good articles help to complete a most interesting issue. Your news dealer can supply you; if not, send 15 cents to Sports Afield, 358 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

The Man a Hotter Proposition Than the Beverage.

One night not long ago Jim Corbett, John W. Bratton, W. W. Denslow and other kindred spirits were gathered about a table in a New York cafe talking about the fight out in Reno, that is, the recent fight. Jim Corbett was telling about what he thought of the battle, and the rest of the party were extremely interested. One Michael Claffy, a rich old contractor, had "butted in" on the strength of having met Corbett after the Sullivan encounter in New Orleans, back in the middle ages.

At every statement of Corbett's Claffy would break in with some comment. The rest of the gathering began to think of some way of making him keep quiet, and Bratton, looking about the table, espied a bottle of tabasco sauce. While Claffy's back was turned he shook several drops of the hot stuff into the old contractor's glass of beer and urged him to "drink up and have another." The rest of them winked and waited for Claffy to swallow the liquid fire. But he was too busy talking.

Then Corbett, growing impatient, unscrewed the top of the pepper bottle and poured its entire contents into Claffy's glass, stirring it well together. "Oh, drink up, old man," said he, "for old time's sake, and have a fresh one with me."

Claffy, without noticing the reddish color of his beer, raised the glass to his whistled lips. The rest of them, expecting that he would drop dead from the terrible dose, got ready to "catch him. The glass reached his mouth, his silk hatted head went back, and down his throat, at one fell swallow, went the epitomized Hades. And then—Smacking his lips carelessly, but without turning a hair, Claffy, Esq., turned to Corbett and asked:

"By the way, Jim, what ever become of that big stiff, Peter Maher?"

And that was all it did to him!—New York World.

They Were Stayers.

After a dinner given by Stephen Price of Drury Lane theater all the guests but Theodore Hook and the Rev. Edward Cannon retired. Price was suffering from gout, but as they disregarded his hints to retire he stole off and left them in high talk.

On the following morning Price inquired of his servant, "Pray, at what time did those gentlemen go last night?"

"Go, sir?" replied John. "They're not gone, sir. They have just rung for coffee."

A Hurricane.

"The terrors of the deep," remarked the captain of a transatlantic liner, "were perhaps never more thrillingly set forth than in the description by a young lady who last year made her first trip abroad. She kept a diary, very much like that of Mark Twain, when for seven days he recorded the fact that he 'got up, washed and went to breakfast.'"

"There was, however, one important exception. When she crossed the channel the experience was so trying that she felt impelled to describe it. I am firmly resolved to stay on deck she wrote, 'although the tempest increased to such a frightful hurricane that it was only with the greatest difficulty that I could hold up my parasol.'—Brooklyn Life.

The Explorers.

Several members of a boat club at Frankfort-on-the-Main recently resolved to row to Mayence by night. It was just 12 o'clock when they seated themselves in their boat, grasped their oars and bade their friends on shore farewell. They pulled vigorously all night, greatly enjoying the healthful exercise, the gloom and quiet and the weird beauty of the river. Their own chagrin and the wild delight of their friends may be imagined when they found at sunrise they had forgotten to weigh anchor and were still fast to the float from which they embarked. They are now known to all Frankfort as "the explorers."

Bright Boy.

A certain business man of Rochester is of the opinion that he has an exceedingly bright office boy, and nothing pleases him better than to tell how he acquired the youngster's services. A notice had been posted in the man's shop window which read as follows: "Boy wanted about fourteen years." A lad of that age, with little that was prepossessing in his appearance, came into the office and stated that he had read the notice.

"So you think you would like to have the position?" asked the merchant patronizingly as he gazed at the lad over the rims of his spectacles.

"Yes, sir" was the reply; "I want the job, but I don't know that I can promise to keep it for the full fourteen years."

CHURCH AND STATE

By AGATHA L. BREWER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Cawky Jack was the sobriquet applied to one of the most villainous demons that ever infested any of the territories belonging to the United States. His name was said to be John Biggers, but that was only surmised from the fact that on one occasion, having killed a man and been arrested, he had been called upon to give his name and had given that one.

For a long while Cawky Jack was accustomed to put people out of his way by means of small round leaden balls. It was a very inexpensive way of doing it, and at the time there was no one in a position to make open objection. But the original venomous nest occupied by Jack grew to be a hamlet, then a town with a church.

The deacons of the church finally came to consider that the place had outgrown Cawky Jack. He must either be reformed or get rid of. At a meeting of the deacons it was decided to send a committee to the desperado to announce to him that he must either come within the fold of the church or stop killing people or "git out." Jack sent back word that he was not prepared to become a Christian and he didn't propose to leave a place in which he had lived so long and "whose boneyard he had done so much to fill."

At a meeting of the deacons to hear the report of the committee Deacon Riggs from Tennessee, who before his conversion had done the next most to Jack in filling the said boneyard, got up and spoke as follows:

"Brethren, I reckon we've all air reckoned to the fact that the sinner must be removed, provided it kin be done accordin' to Scripture. Now, I hold that the good book doesn't nowhere forbid us to strike down the enemies o' the Lord. It does say that 'he who smites with the sword shall perish by the sword,' or words to that effect. But whar, I'd like to know, does it say anything about the revolver? I move that after pra'r we resolve ourselves into a committee to go forth, and the first one of us that meets Cawky Jack opens fire."

The speaker sat down, and Brother Hargan arose.

"I think," said Hargan, "that I kin name a better way than that. I recommend that we offer a twenty dollar bill to any man as 'll shoot Cawky Jack."

Since nobody wished to take a personal part in the job, the motion found favor with the brethren. Hargan was empowered to make the offer, and the meeting adjourned.

The next morning a notice appeared on the church door stating that anybody who would shoot Cawky Jack would receive $20 from the church funds. The object of this notice, sauntering by the church, saw it and read it. He went on very thoughtful. The next day he expressed a desire to meet the deacons, and they agreed to meet him that evening in a wing of the church used for a Sunday school room. When they were assembled Jack arose and said:

"I appreciate the effort o' you gents in tryin' to make this yere a respectable community. But I allus hearn thur's no gov'ment so low down as the gov'ment o' the richious. The church is fer spiritual work; the law is fer gov'ment. Now, if you gents will organize a court in this yere town as 'll make a law agin carryin' weepous I'll be the first to drap mine."

Since this was coming in another way at what the committee wanted they agreed to the proposition, called a public meeting, and a court was duly organized. As soon as this was effected Cawky Jack swore out a warrant against the deacons, charging them with conspiracy with intent to kill him. The people were somewhat taken aback at this proceeding on the part of the legally reformed Cawky Jack, but the newly elected officers saw no way to proceed except in accordance with the statutes. The deacons were all arrested, but immediately bailed.

Their counsel, a real lawyer imported for the purpose of defending them informed them that a long term of imprisonment was the penalty fixed for their crime and the proof was undisputable. They unanimously decided to return to Deacon Riggs' plan.

The Tennesseean was himself the first man to meet Cawky Jack after the decision.

"Howdy, deacon?" said Jack.

"Howdy, Jack?" replied the deacon.

"How is the law workin'?"

"First rate. It's church and state together. The law says 'Carry no weepous.' The church says 'Smite him hip and thigh.'"

There was a report and Jack fell dead.

This removed the prosecutor of the deacons, and a nolle prosequi was entered.

The little wooden church on whose door was tacked the offer for the elimination of Cawky Jack is now an eminently respectable stone edifice, and its worshipers are refined people. Its founders seemed to realize that the moral incidents attending their early efforts in its behalf were crude, for in the "boneyard," now the cemetery connected with it, is a marble headstone on which is inscribed:

Cawky Jack.
A victim in the cause of religion.

Lesson III.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 16, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. xxv, 31-46. Memory Verses, 34-36—Golden Text, Matt. xxv, 40—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is found also only in Matthew. It is called in the ordinary lesson title "The Last Judgment." If it had been added "preceding the kingdom" the title would have been correct. There are at least three judgments in the future. Dr. Scofield sees five, one for Israel only and one for angels. See his note on Rev. xx, 12. The three we refer to are the judgment for believers only at the judgment seat of Christ (Rom. xiv, 10; II Cor. v, 10), the judgment of the living nations of today's lesson and the judgment of the ungodly at the great white throne a thousand years later than the judgment of nations (Rev. xx, 5, 6, 11-15). The judgment of our sins took place on Golgotha when Jesus suffered for sins the just for the unjust, when He put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself, and He has assured us that for our sins we shall not come into judgment (I Pet. iii, 18; Heb. ix, 26; John v, 24, R. V.). See also Isa. xliii, 25. His redeemed ones, having received pounds and talents and having occupied, done business, witnessed for Him during this age, shall at the first resurrection, at the coming of Christ for His saints, somewhere in connection with the marriage of the Lamb, be rewarded for their service and have their places appointed in His kingdom. While this is taking place in the air or in heaven the great tribulation is on the earth, at the end of which, immediately after it, the Son of Man will come in power and glory (Matt. xxiv, 29-30), and this is the stage of His coming referred to in the first verse of today's lesson.

Unless we see ourselves as well as the holy angels coming with Him at this time, we cannot understand this lesson. "Take one of the simplest statements. 'When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with Him in glory' (Col. iii, 4). Put with it I Thess. iii, 13, and Zech. xiv, 5, then ask yourself as a believer the question, 'When He shall come in His glory where will I be with Him on His throne or before Him as sheep or goats?' Put Rev. iii, 21, with the texts already referred to, and how any simple minded believer can fail to see his place with Christ in this judgment I cannot understand. Let us then keep our place with Christ as we consider the sheep and goats. 'Before Him shall be gathered all nations' (verse 2). Let the Spirit Himself tell us about it. What has He said elsewhere? 'Behold, in those days and in that time when I bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will also gather all nations * * * and will plead with them there for my people and for my heritage Israel' (Joel iii, 1, 2). 'For I will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle; * * * then shall the Lord go forth and fight against those nations' (Zech. xiv, 1-5). Could it in any way be made more plain that this judgment will be the time of mercy for Israel and judgment upon her enemies, according to Isa. xxxiv, 8; xxxv, 4; xliii, 4? Concerning this very time He says in Ezek. xxxiv, 17, 'Behold, I judge between lambs and kids, between the rams and the he goats.' From many places in Scripture it is very plain that as this age draws to a close Israel will occupy the land long ago given to Abraham, reaching from Egypt to the Euphrates (Gen. xv, 18). They will be recognized as a nation, perhaps under the patronage of Turkey, which is even now offering them Mesopotamia if reports be true, and for a time it will seem as if their troubles were over, but their friend will break his covenant with them, nations will gather against them, and in their extremity their Messiah will appear in glory for their deliverance and to set up His kingdom. The nations which have been friendly to Israel shall share her glory, but judgment shall fall upon her enemies, even as it is written in Isa. ix, 12, 'The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall perish.' After this judgment of nations, at which time the evil trinity, having done their worst against the people of God, shall be disposed of, the beast and false prophet being cast into the lake of fire forever and the devil shut up in the pit for a thousand years, then shall a king reign in righteousness, and the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the service of righteousness quietness and assurance forever.

There are principles here, however, upon which God always acts in every judgment. That which is done to His people at any time He counts as done to Himself, whether it be good or ill. "He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of His eye." "Why persecutest thou me?" "A cup of cold water shall in nowise lose its reward" (Zech. ii, 8; Acts ix, 4; Matt. x, 40-42). As we read of those who ministered to Him when He was on earth, some think how gladly they would have done this, forgetting that it is our privilege at all times to minister to Him in the person of His people. The poor we have with us always, and whenever we will we may do them good. He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord.

Notice as to the future it will either be the kingdom or everlasting fire, eternal life or everlasting punishment (verses 34, 41, 46). The everlasting is as long in the one case as in the other.

FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

OFFER OF FUSION CAME TOO LATE

Besides Sincerity of Proposition Open to Question.

GOOD TEMPERED ANSWER

Democratic State Executive Committee Advises Against the Withdrawal of Candidate and Grim Acquiesces.

Senator Grim, Democratic nominee for governor, bases upon the will of the Democratic state executive committee, his letter to the nine independent, telling why he does not comply with their request that he and William H. Berry withdraw from the campaign, to let a fusion ticket be substituted. Grim accepts the committee's decision that the fusion proposition came too late in the campaign to be carried out, but that an easy solution of the matter could and should be reached by the withdrawal of Berry in favor of the Grim ticket. As the Democrats accepted the independent Republican candidate for governor, Emery, four years ago, there is no reason, in the view of the committee and of Grim, why all the independents represented by "the nine" and all other anti-gang citizens, should not support Grim and his fellow nominees.

Grim concurs in the committee's view that if Berry were sincere he would hasten to do his part toward bringing about a union of all the anti-Penrose-Tener forces for the Democratic state ticket, composed of "men as honest and capable as any that could be selected from the ranks of the Democratic party." Grim, supplementing the conclusions of the committee with only a brief paragraph or two on his own reasons for staying in the fight, declares that it is the committee's decision, and not his, that should prevail, as it is the only power to consult with representatives of another party in substituting candidates if withdrawals are made.

Senator Grim's Letter.

Senator Grim's letter, dated Saturday, Oct. 1, and addressed to "Mr. Richard L. Austin and others," follows:

"Gentlemen—Upon my arrival home last evening I found your letter and telegram. Inasmuch as I had arranged a week ago to attend the meeting of the executive committee today, and the subject matter of your letter as of importance, I thought best to lay the matter before the committee and this has caused some delay. I placed the proposition contained in your letter before them and asked their advice, stating at the same time that I would be guided entirely by their wishes, and of my desire to join in any movement which would strengthen our fight against the Republican machine. "The gentlemen of the committee, after a full and free discussion of every phase of the question, reached the conclusion, which they authorized me to embody in my reply to your letter, that it was too late in the campaign to arrange the fusion along the lines proposed, involving, as it did, the withdrawal of the whole Democratic ticket, regularly and fairly nominated, and the substitution of other men not yet agreed upon. The members of the committee were unanimous in their opinion that Mr. Berry should show his sincerity by withdrawing from the Keystone movement, particularly in view of the fact that his candidacy offered no hope of success, but by dividing the Democratic vote in any proportion he was indirectly contributing to the assistance given to Mr. Tener.

Grim Now, as Emery Then.

"They laid much stress upon the fact that the Democratic party accepted Mr. Emery four years ago and could find no sufficient reason why the independents represented by you gentlemen should not join with us now in cordial support of our candidates. I believe are as honest and capable as any that could be selected from the ranks of the Democratic party. These views and conclusions were expressed by the gentlemen who are the only ones who could, under our rules, agree with similar committees in the substitution of new candidates if withdrawals were made, and their conclusions in this matter rather than any desires of my own should prevail with all of our candidates.

"I am not unmindful of the cruelties and possibly insinuations that may be made in certain quarters as to the conclusion of the committee and my action thereon, but I assure you that every expression of the members breathed a sincere desire and an earnest hope for united action against the Republican machine in this state. They recognized as I do the lofty motives which inspired your letter, and I can assure you that their motives and mine are equally sincere.

Grim Champion of the Seventy.

"For my own part I can repeat with absolute truth that so far as I have knowledge or have been able to ascertain there was nothing about the Allentown convention, despite statements to the contrary, that would cause any of you gentlemen to withhold your support from me. When the Committee of Seventy, to which some of you gentlemen belong, submitted proposed legislation to the legislature I was your ardent supporter, and during my whole legislative career I have been quite active in my opposition to the Penrose machine. I have made no deals, contracts or obligations to any man or set of men in or out of our party that would control my free action, and, if elected, I would have every incentive to give to this state, a model administration."

TARIFF, TAXES AND THE HOME

Some of the Burdens Republican Policies Impose on the Household.

When the wrinkled, chapped laundress finishes the week's wash and delivers it Saturday night she has received during her week's labor the following blessings from the Payne-Alldrich tariff, writes Charles Johnson Post in the New York World:

On her soap she has been tariff-taxed 20 per cent.

On the wrapper in which the soap comes, 25 per cent.

On the ammonia that helps to keep the flannels soft, 25 per cent.

The washing soda is tariff-taxed 1/4 of a penny a pound.

The starch is tariff-taxed 1 1/2 cents a pound and the borax 2 cents a pound. The bluing is protected with a 30 per cent tariff.

She wrings them out on a wringer the metal castings of which are tariff-taxed 1 cent a pound, and the wooden frame 35 per cent, and the rubber rollers 35 per cent.

The washboard itself is tariff-taxed 35 per cent, and the ribbed zinc 1 1/2 cents a pound.

She dumps the damp clothes into a wicker clothes basket that is tariff-taxed 35 per cent.

Merrily she trips up on the roof and hangs them on the clothes line—the clothes line tariff-taxed 45 per cent—with clothes pins tariff-taxed 35 per cent.

If instead she balances herself on the fire escape the rope is taxed the same and the pulley is also taxed 45 per cent. A wooden frame dryer is taxed 35 per cent.

She gathers them in the tariff-taxed basket and irons them with irons tariff-taxed 8-10 of a penny on a pound.

She heats the irons on a tariff-taxed stove; keeps her coal in a scuttle tariff-taxed 45 per cent. If she uses charcoal it is taxed 20 per cent, or coke 20 per cent. Even the matches are tariff-taxed 1/2 penny a dozen boxes. "Mony a mickle makes a muckle"—motto of match trust.

On the tub over which she bends and scrubs there is a tariff tax of 35 per cent. The bench or chairs it rests on are taxed 35 per cent, and the paper pall beside them is tariff-taxed 35 per cent.

If she has been able to save up and get a mangle, the metal castings for it are tariff-taxed 1 penny a pound, the wooden rollers 35 per cent, and the framework 35 per cent. Nothing is too small and no one too poor to be overlooked.

When Your Wife Sews.

Some morning there is a button gone or there is a brand-new tear in Willie's jacket or Ethelinda's frock, and the little mother brings out her sewing kit and selects the right spool of thread.

If she needs cotton thread it is tariff-taxed 1/2 of a penny on each small spool. If it happens to be a larger spool of cotton thread it has been taxed twice as much—1 penny each spool. But should the little job call for silk thread, that thread is tariff-taxed 9 1/2 cents on each ounce.

The smallest tax is on linen thread, as it is taxed only 3/4 of a penny an ounce.

Does the little mother keep the spools neatly in a spool case—one of those little straw and silk affairs? She has been tariff-taxed 50 per cent on it.

Then there is a thimble, a hard-rubber thimble, perhaps, tariff-taxed 35 per cent. Or it is of metal, metal thimbles are taxed 45 per cent.

Also the scissors are tariff-taxed—4 cents a pair and in addition to that 15 per cent.

Many pins are needed. The ordinary pins are tariff-taxed 25 per cent; those with glass heads 45 per cent, and safety pins 35 per cent.

Then there is a tape needle with which to run through a pucker-string or weave the little ribbons that simulate shyness beneath a perfectly transparent or translucent shirt waist, and the tape needle is tariff-taxed 25 per cent.

The whole darning and mending and button sewing outfit is very likely stowed in one of those wicker sewing stands, and that is tariff-taxed 45 per cent.

The little mother has bought a sewing machine out of the savings from the housekeeping allowance, and that is tariff-taxed 30 per cent. The needles she uses in it are taxed 25 per cent.

Ethelinda is saving for one of those little sewing machines—almost practical—and some one of these days the little girl will be tariff-taxed on that 35 per cent.

Her grandmother knits with knitting needles tariff-taxed 25 per cent, or crochets with crochet needles taxed 25 per cent, while the woolen yarn she is working with is tariff-taxed 24 cents an ounce and in addition to that 40 per cent.

The Payne tariff tax law is a tax on the thrifty home work basket.

This is the trademark which is found on every bottle of the genuine

Scott's Emulsion the standard Cod Liver Oil preparation of the world. Nothing equals it to build up the weak and wasted bodies of young and old.

$25,000 Prize Contest

The Pittsburg Dispatch's great voting contest, in which that publication is giving $25,000 in prizes to the people of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia, is attracting widespread attention and interesting many people in this section.

Leading the list of 78 prizes are three splendid touring cars. They are a $2,750 Columbia, a $2,200 White gasoline car and a $1,700 Oakland car. These prizes are to be awarded to the contestants having the first, second and third highest number of votes in the entire contest, regardless of where they live.

By a judicious division of the three states five divisions have been created. After the grand prizes have been awarded, come the division, or sub-division prizes, consisting of five $1,000 Maxwell touring cars, five player pianos worth $800 each, and five $400 upright pianos. One Maxwell, one player piano and one upright piano must go into each of the five divisions, namely: Greater Pittsburg, Allegheny County outside of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania outside of Allegheny County, Ohio and West Virginia.

These divisions are then divided into 15 districts and it is provided that a $200 diamond ring, a $150 furniture outfit, a $100 furniture outfit and $50 in gold must go into each of these 15 districts.

This is a handsome array of prizes and the arrangement of divisions and districts equalizes the competition and gives every contestant, no matter where he or she lives, a splendid opportunity to win.

Any respectable person, no matter whether a subscriber to The Dispatch or not, may enter the contest. It costs nothing to make the effort to win one of The Dispatch's 78 prizes; there are no obligations of any kind attached to entering. The competition is open to all and free to all. Many interested people in this vicinity will probably avail themselves of this opportunity to bring some of the prizes here.

All that is necessary to enter the contest is to clip out and fill in the nomination ballot published daily in The Pittsburg Dispatch and send it to the Contest Manager of The Pittsburg Dispatch.

BELL TRUST EXPOSED

The Independent Telephone Companies of Bedford County are anxious that the farmers and merchants of said county be not deceived by the "Bell Trust." "Munsing" The Best Underwear for Men, Women and Children

BEST

Because in quality there is NONE BETTER, though you may pay more.

Because it is the most SENSIBLE, SERVICEABLE, SATISFACTORY underwear at any price.

Because it gives a maximum of COMFORT and SERVICE at a minimum of cost.

Ten years of constantly increased sales without a dissatisfied customer or a complaint of any kind, is the record of Munsing Underwear in this store. It has been the means of enlarging our underwear section from a comparatively small space to one of the most pretentious in our dry goods department, and we count the exclusive agency for Munsing Underwear as one of our most valuable trade assets. From our experience we know that it is the very best in the market—no other underwear combines so perfectly the elements that lead to perfection—quality, fit, finish and moderate price, a point that every knowing woman will agree is so.

Munsing Separate Garments and Union Suits

This famous underwear is made in one of the largest and best equipped mills in the whole country, where every facility experience can suggest and money can supply are at the disposal of the trained, expert operatives; where the most hygienic conditions prevail, where every system that tends to perfection of product is employed, and where supervision is extended so far as to include the physical and material condition of its workers. With the finest yarns to work with, the most up-to-date machinery, and a system so perfect, it is no wonder that this model factory turns out such perfect underwear, and in such quantities—10,000 garments a day, day in and day out—again, no wonder Munsing Underwear costs so little. The immensity of the product assures low cost and makes it the best underwear value that can be had.

The Season for Buying Is On

Although the season is just beginning, our sales in this section far surpass any previous record at a corresponding date, indicating two things: First—that people are taking advantage of a complete stock to select from, such as is now the case, and Second—that it is generally known that values such as we offer cannot be duplicated elsewhere. In this connection we are glad to state that, notwithstanding the great advance in cost of all lines of underwear, we are selling the same grades at the same prices that ruled last year; in fact, in the past five years we have advanced but one price, and that but 15c per garment. Buying in larger quantities to supply an ever-increasing trade is responsible for this happy condition.
